This amazing 007 team helps To Celebrate Life Breast Cancer Foundation provide both support for our grants program and you with "A Night to Bond." Join them for an amazing evening at Stepping Out.

Mary Mathews - Independent Living Advocate and 2011 Stepping Out Model

Mary was 42 when she was diagnosed with breast cancer. "I didn't believe it," she says. She felt fine, so how could she have this scary diagnosis? The next year of chemo, surgery and radiation turned her life upside down. Luckily her cancer was caught just in time, and she is now a nine-year survivor. "Having to face one's mortality at a young age is something that not everyone has to experience, but with it came a new life and a new me," she says.

Mary joined the Marin Center for Independent Living, a To Celebrate Life grantee, in 2003. Primarily dedicated to benefits counseling for people with disabilities and seniors, MCIL started a program for women with breast cancer in 2005. "Our goal is to keep people housed and keep them from losing their insurance," says Mary. MCIL works with about 50 women a year, assisting them with COBRA and helping them access other available programs.

"When people get diagnosed with breast cancer and go through treatment, it can be overwhelming to have to take care of bills," says Mary. "It helps them get through the process when they get that bit of extra support." Most of the breast cancer clients MCIL serves are self-employed women or single moms.

Mary feels honored to "help people get through the critical few months and assist them in putting together a plan so when they are done with treatments they can come back into the world and be strong again."

Mother and daughter take to the runway in *Stepping Out

Judy Pack was diagnosed with breast cancer in 2004. Six years later, her 47-year-old daughter, Jennifer Lauter, got "the call." Tests indicated there was no genetic connection involved. Judy is thrilled to be a 6+ year survivor, and Jennifer is grateful for the new friends and closer bonds that resulted from her cancer experience. On October 1, both women will be celebrating life in our spectacular "The World is Not Enough" fashion show.

A Model's Story

"I do not understand the mystery of grace -- only that it meets us where we are and does not leave us where it found us." ~ Anne Lamott

Leslie Vanoni, who will be modeling in Stepping Out on October 1, was diagnosed with stage 2 breast cancer on December 2, 2001, her twin daughters' 4th birthday. She spent all of 2002 in treatment with multiple surgeries, 8 rounds of chemotherapy and radiation. Leslie used her diagnosis as an excuse to be miserable. Even when her doctors indicated she was in full remission, she held on to the anger and self-pity. "I hurt many people along the way. I lost friends, family, but most of all I lost myself," she says.

Over time, she had a change of heart and began to heal. She said, "If I ever have cancer again, I only ask that I handle it with some GRACE."

On Valentine's Day 2011, Leslie was diagnosed with stage 4 breast cancer. The story continues...

Faces of the Foundation - Janice Still

Janice was part of the Foundation before there was a Foundation! One of the "founding mothers," she's been a vital part of To Celebrate Life since that first fateful fashion show in a Kentfield garden in 1996.

That year she teamed up with B.B. Bernheim and several other Marin breast cancer survivors to raise money for the American Cancer Society. The group called themselves the Marin Breast Cancer Committee (later changed to Marin Breast Cancer Council). Janice and the others not only did all the planning and setting up of the event, they modeled and cleaned up, too!

Encouraged by their success (they raised $30,000), the women decided to make this an annual event, and the next year they held an evening gala in a hangar at Hamilton Field. "It was magical," says

Janice, who modeled again that year to a crowd of nearly 500. "We wanted the money we raised to help women and families in Marin County," recalls Janice. "I remember helping one gal from the canal district get her sister up here from Mexico so she could help during her recovery."

For the last seven years, Janice has graciously offered her home for the Stepping Out model luncheon, the kickoff event for the fashion show. "What's wonderful is that we are helping women, and to see the models giving back makes me feel good," she says.

Tidbits

In the LOOP goes quarterly. Starting in November, our newsletter will go from a monthly to a quarterly schedule, timed to coincide with the Foundation's major events. But don't worry about missing out on the news. You will receive separate email notifications about meetings or other important updates.

Your donations at work - To Celebrate Life 2010 grants totaling $270,000 benefited over 1,700 clients served by the 21 nonprofit organizations funded. Here's a sampling of what your dollars helped to provide:

- Over 500 screening and diagnostic tests primarily for symptomatic women and men.
- This testing identified at least six breast cancers, saving lives and improving quality of life after treatment because of early diagnosis.
- Emergency funds helped 78 breast cancer patients pay rent or utilities or helped stabilize them financially during a challenging time.
- More than 9,000 meals nourished 80 breast cancer patients and their families while they were in treatment
- More than 200 complementary therapy treatments
